Q.67 (WVWV) As you may have heard, under the new health care reform law, all health insurance plans, starting in August, will begin covering the costs of contraception and birth control, without any co-pays. Churches, synagogues, mosques and places of worship were exempted, but Catholic hospitals and universities that employ people of different faiths, when they provide health insurance, those policies will need to cover the cost of contraception and birth control. As you have heard about this story, did you mostly agree with these new policies or mostly disagree with them?

Q.68 (WVWV) Let me tell you more about this issue. After I read these statements, please tell me which one comes closer to your point of view.

President Obama says this rule is important because women for the first time are guaranteed preventive health coverage, including prescription contraception without co-pays, as recommended by the Institute of Medicine. But churches, synagogues and places of worship are exempted and where a Catholic hospital or university objects, their employees will be able to get their coverage without added cost directly from the insurance company. This strikes the right balance, religious liberties are protected and women can still get coverage where they work.

OR

Republican presidential candidates and leaders say this not about women's rights or contraception. This is an attack on religion and on all people of faith. In imposing this requirement, the federal government is violating a First Amendment right that has stood for more than two centuries. Religious organizations will be required to condone contraception because their insurance plans must include it. The government should not require religious organizations to violate their own principles.

Having heard this, which statement do you agree with more, the statement by President Obama or the statement by Republican presidential candidates and leaders?
