Q.66 (WVWV) Now, thinking ahead to the presidential elections in 2016, I am going to read you something Democratic leaders are saying about how things in this country could be better. Please tell me whether you find it a very convincing, somewhat convincing, a little convincing, or a not at all convincing statement about how things in this country could be better.

People are drowning because jobs don't pay enough to live on. We need leaders who can live a day of our lives and make change for us, not for the richest who show up with the big money. We must help people here with affordable college, job training, and childcare. We must raise the minimum wage and make sure women get equal pay so working women and families can keep up with the cost of living. We need to reduce the tax burden for low-wage workers and give a tax break for lower and middle class working families with children. We need an economy here that works for working people and the middle class again, not just those with the big money.

Q.68 (WVWV) Now, thinking ahead to the presidential elections in 2016, I am going to read you something Republican leaders are saying about how things in this country could be better. Please tell me whether you find it a very convincing, somewhat convincing, a little convincing, or a not at all convincing statement about how things in this country could be better.

President Obama has failed to get our economy back on track, and we can do better. The middle class is struggling with declining paychecks, high unemployment, and rising costs. But bigger government and higher taxes aren't the answer. We need to loosen the burdensome regulations that impede economic development, simplify the tax code that is stifling small businesses, and fully harness our energy economy by building the Keystone Pipeline. And we need a smaller, leaner government that balances its budget and addresses the soaring national debt. We can bring back opportunity and stimulate growth and job creation if we just get government out of the way and allow energetic and entrepreneurial Americans to rebuild the economy from the ground up.
